Anadarko, Oklahoma-based Cooperative Employees' Credit Union Joins Nation's Largest fee-free ATM Network

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. – July 14, 2010 – Credit Union 24 announced today that Cooperative Employees' Credit Union of Anadarko, Okla., has joined the nation's largest fee-free ATM network, providing its members with accessibility to more than 50,000 surcharge-free ATMs nationwide.

"At Cooperative Employees' Credit Union, we work to help our members achieve their financial goals and enhance their financial situation by offering them services such as low-interest loans, high-yield savings accounts, and exclusive offers, such as our summer vacation special," said Jamie Courtney, CEO of Cooperative Employees' Credit Union. "Our partnership with Credit Union 24 will allow our members to utilize thousands of ATM and point-of-sale locations across the nation, providing them convenient, fee-free access to their money no matter where they are located and offering an additional level of exceptional service."

Cooperative Employees' Credit Union currently serves more than 790 members and has more than $7 million in assets. Cooperative Employees' Credit Union offers its members a variety of financial services including loans, savings accounts, and competitive financial offers, such as summer vacation specials, which makes low-rate ticket prices to vacation destinations available to members.

"Our partnership with Cooperative Employees' Credit Union is a great example of how the credit union model benefits consumers at the local and national level," said Jim Park, president and CEO of Credit Union 24. "Cooperative Employees' Credit Union is owned by its members, and Credit Union 24 is owned by credit unions that participate in the network. This model of ownership ensures that the members of Cooperative Employees' Credit Union have a voice in the financial services that they want and need, and allows them to control their financial well-being."
